Douglas Gordon Collection

| | |
|-------------------|---|
| Size | 29 boxes |
| Contents | Papers, journal articles, newspaper clippings and correspondence related to Prof. Douglas Gordon's medical career and his interest in Queensland's medical history. |
| Date range | 1950 to 1993 |
| Biography | Douglas Gordon was born on April 19, 1911 and grew up near Maryborough, Queensland. He began studying medicine at the University of Melbourne in 1931 but the Depression and family hardship forced him to abandon his studies and become a farmer for seven years. In 1938, he entered the second year of the medical course at the newly established Faculty of Medicine at the University of Queensland. He graduated in June 1942 and served as a Medical Officer to RAAF airfield construction squadrons in the Dutch East Indies. After the war, he spent 10 years as head of Industrial Hygiene in the Queensland State Health Department, before becoming the first full-time professor of Social and Preventive Medicine at the University of Queensland in 1957. He was Dean of the Faculty of Medicine from 1962 to 1967. He published extensively, both in the areas of social and preventive medicine and in medical history. He retired in 1976 and died in October 1993. |
| Notes | Open access Other papers by Douglas Gordon on medical history are held at F2231 and F2336. |

Material on Leslie John Jarvis Nye (1891-1976)

Dr. Nye was born in Rockhampton and attended Sydney University. He served in the armed forces as a doctor during World War I, and was superintendent of Atherton Hospital (1918-1926). In 1928 he settled in Brisbane, and in 1930 opened the Brisbane Clinic. He pioneered research into lead poisoning and aided in the banning of lead paint. A prolific writer, he published works on medical and philosophical themes. Dr. Nye was a proponent of euthanasia and ended his own life in 1976, aged 84.
